JAPAN YIELDS TO PRESSURE FROM AMERICA

Pledges Washington It Will Respect Foreign Rights

BULLETIN

Washington, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Under pressure from the American and British governments, Japan has assured that foreign rights in the international settlement at Shanghai will be respected.

Secretary Stimson made the announcement today a short while after meeting with President Hoover and the Cabinet in a prolonged session.

His formal statement said: "Several days ago I discussed with the British Ambassador the making of representations to Japan, that, in view of the efficient police and other sources of protection already available in the international settlement, there should be no military occupation of that settlement by Japan unless the municipal force became clearly inadequate to protect life and property."

Wednesday our government made such a communication to Japan and we have now received an answer assuring this government that international rights and interests in Shanghai would not be interfered with.

It seems evident that a lack of unanimity as to the American course had dropped out at the Cabinet meeting, but the various department heads kept what had happened to themselves.

Washington, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Mystification mingled with alarm here today on official report of a truce at Shanghai and a Japanese denial there.

With the United States and Great Britain preparing to insist that Japan

He hopes to get his bigger navy bill enacted this session, but the House Naval committee has sidetracked moves there to report such a measure now due to the condition of the Treasury.

There were indications that in the light of far eastern developments naval legislation might be taken up in committee soon again.

Hale expects to call attention to figures brought out in recent hearings, which portray the Japanese fleet as growing more rapidly than the American or British navies.

HOPE ABANDONED FOR CREW SUNKEN BRITISH U-BOAT

Search For Submarine Which Sank Tuesday Continues

Chicago Crime Fighters Unite To Destroy Midwest Ring

Portland, England, Jan. 29.—(AP)—

The last straw of hope for the rescue alive of any of the sixty-one men who went down with the British submarine M-2 Tuesday was snatched away today by the publication of an Admiralty statement saying it was no longer possible to go below ten above freezing.

The statement, based on a report of the Rear Admiral in charge of submarines, said, however, that the search for the submarine would continue.

The object sought by divers yesterday was found to be an old wreck, the Admiral said, and the succeeding search will be conducted at another spot where a sweep brought up two submarine hand flags in a canvas case.

Desperate efforts were made last night to reach what was thought to be the submarine, although even then the spark of hope was feeble. Divers risked their lives time after time, in a stormy sea, to reach the bottom of the eighteen fathom area in the Channel where the submarine was believed to be lying. When night fell and the sea grew more rough, they were forced to abandon the effort, however.

The reception of what were thought to be "sub-surface signals" by the hydrophone of the destroyer Thruster, which was assisting in the rescue work, added impetus to the labors of the Navy's crews, now definitely declared without reward.

NAMES SOME OF GANG

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, director of the Secret Six, said information his agents gleaned would be used to act as a boomerang on a mid-west kidnap ring should it try to carry out its threats on five prominent Chicagoans, whose names he would not reveal.

He named, however, several men as members of the ring:

Sam Hunt and James (Red) Forsythe, Capone lieutenants Lee Turner, formerly of St. Louis; Jack Klutis, sought in the slaying of a highway policeman; Eddie LaFate, wanted in a series of abductions; Francis Keating and Thomas Holden, Chicago escaped convicts from the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, and Rocco Rotuna and Buster Brown, reputed St. Louis hoodlums.

The State Attorney's office, already holding several alleged members of an extortionist syndicate, said it would broaden its search for accomplices as Louis Alterie, charged with its direction, was being returned from Colorado to face trial.

He is reputedly a former associate of Dion O'Banion, slain vice and gang lord.

Would-Be Slayer Of Woman Lost Nerve

Chicago, Jan. 29.—(AP)—

The police extended an inquiry to Milwaukee today to check reports that the man they held in the shooting of a woman here was married, the father of seven children and named Volkmann.

Mrs. Mary Lockinger, 42, was critically wounded in her apartment last night and the man who gave the name of Albert Siehoff, 45, and Wheaton, Ill., as his residence, was captured nearby a few minutes later after he had discarded a pistol.

The police received advice from Milwaukee that Siehoff answered the description of Volkmann who formerly lived there, twice attempted to kill himself due to ill health, and deserted his wife, Mrs. Mollie Volkmann and seven children in 1928.

In Siehoff's pockets the police found a note addressed to Mrs. Volkmann, Milwaukee, and signed by himself, in which he said his last love had made a fool of him and he was "taking her along" as he could "stand no more."

The police expressed the belief that by "last love" he meant Mrs. Lockinger. They said the note indicated he meant to kill her and then himself, but lost his nerve.

SCORE OF UGLY WOUNDS FOUND ON THUG'S BODY

Chicago, Jan. 29.—(AP)—

The police found 24 old bullet wounds and several ugly knife scars that looked as though they had healed without medical attention. These scars, the jury said, indicated that many other attempts had been made on Perardi's life and substantiated their belief that he had a long record as a liquor dealer.

The jury's formal verdict found that Perardi "died from bullets fired from a .32 caliber pistol by persons unknown."

After testifying at the inquest, Mail was arrested by Federal agents and taken to Milwaukee where he was to be arraigned today on charges of violating the liquor law.

Find Body Of Slain Hoodlum In His Car

Chicago, Jan. 29.—(AP)—

For 12 hours an automobile with a grisly cargo stood parked at the busy intersection of Jackson Boulevard and Hermite Avenue on the west side of Chicago.

Workmen hurried by yesterday and shoppers passed it without a glance.

Then a group of school children peered within and what they saw sent them away screaming with terror.

Police found Phillip (Sonny) Flavin dead on the floor, the back of his head shot away with a shotgun charge. They ascribed his slaying to an alcohol war and attempted to link it to Capone gangsters.

Caraway and Letter in northeast Arkansas were still flooded and a rise in the St. Francis was expected southward in Arkansas, the Red River burst the levees near Fulton.

Approximately 2,500 persons were homeless in the Colfax, La., area, where breaks in the R-1 river levees cut off communication.

The Mississippi, into which the swollen tributaries are pouring, was falling at Memphis but rising at Vicksburg. Flood stages were forecast at several points.

Zero Weather, First of Winter Forecast Tonight

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 29.—(AP)—

First zero weather in Illinois this winter was forecast today by the United States Weather Bureau which stated that "a cold wave, with temperatures from zero to ten above prevailing, would begin tonight."

The coldest part of the wave, it was announced would hit Chicago and the northern part of the state where it is expected thermometers will register zero or below.

In central Illinois, it was stated, the temperature is not expected to go below ten above zero.

The cold wave, the bureau said, will break up one of the mildest winters in Illinois history and probably give the state its coldest weather since December 24, 1930, when the state's last below zero mark was registered.

This occurred at Danville when the temperature went to four below.

Previous to that the coldest weather experienced in Illinois was in February, 1930, when two stations recorded temperatures of four below at La Harpe, and one below at Hillsboro.

The last general below zero weather in Illinois, the bureau stated, was on January 18, 1930, when central Illinois thermometers recorded temperatures ranging from 16 to 24 below zero.

Coldest weather experienced in Illinois this winter thus far was seven above zero at Freeport, the bureau stated.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD CONFESSION IS REVEALED NOWNegro In Employ of Al
Capone, Interests
Talked Then

Chicago, Jan. 29—(AP)—A confession made five years ago by a chauffeur for "Scarface" Al Capone's liquor syndicate was made public by the government today.

Containig valuable information on the methods of the gang in bribing police, terrorizing customers and killing foes, the confession was revealed to prevent two members of the group from obtaining bond. They were Sam and Joe Rinella, sentenced to five and two years in Federal penitentiary, respectively, for manufacturing liquor.

The confession was made by Homer West, Negro chauffeur for Sam Rinella, to Assistant United States District Attorney Dan Anderson. He said it furnished the government many valuable leads.

West described the methods of the Rinellas in hi-jacking their own customers of liquor which they had just sold, and re-selling it to others frequently taking it away from the second buyers also; or retaining squads of hired killers at $200 a death; of the necessity for closing up one still because demands of police for protection money ate up the profits; of West's immunity from spending at 60 miles an hour in "protected" districts, of trap doors through which marked victims disappeared to death in the homes of Rinella killers.

The Federal Circuit Court of Appeals denied the request for bond, although the Rinellas pleaded they were "peaceful citizens."

America's Biggest Business Is the Home

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 28—(AP)— America's biggest business is homemaking, Mrs. Clara Ingram Judson of Evanston, Ill., said in an address for delivery here today at the 20th annual state farm and home convention.

"The home," she said, "turns out the most important national products: people. Each individual home is a branch office of the national homemaking business. By improving the standards and the methods in each individual home, we can improve our country and create better citizens."

Discussing the home as big business, Mrs. Judson said: "This is not sentimentality but a frank recognition of economic facts. The home handles the major portion of the nation's wealth. The man, woman and child in the home are the ultimate consumers, and for them business operates. They do not buy the pig iron, the steers and the baled cotton, but they do buy the beef-steaks, the shoes, the sheets and the clothing, and for them railroads and telephone wires weave a network of business over the country."

"The successful man now realizes that homemaking is a financial as well as a spiritual partnership," said
Mrs. Judson.

The family standard of living, the family income, division of labor, use of leisure, personal allowance and other subjects were discussed by
Mrs. Judson.

Waffle Supper Attended by 30

The members of the Methodist newlyweds expect to make their home at Spring Valley, where they will receive the best wishes of hosts of friends for future happiness.

SPENDING STATE MONEY.

Everybody understands, by this time, the urgent necessity of wiping out the deficit in the federal treasury.

Unfortunately, the publicity this deficit has received has made governmental economy seem to be almost exclusively a federal affair. The part that it should play in state governments has been overlooked.

It is odd that this should be so; for over-spending at the state capital will hit the average citizen much more quickly, and painfully, than will over-spending at Washington.

A business man, for instance, may pay Uncle Sam $20 a year in income taxes, and he will kick like a steer if this rises to $30. But his state will collect an equal sum from him annually in gasoline taxes alone, and he will hardly know, offhand, whether the gasoline tax has gone up or down lately.

Similarly, if he owns his home, his state, city and county governments will collect from $200 to $500 a year from him. Carefree spending at the state capital can add $10 or $20 a year to that sum very easily. Yet he will pay little or no attention to what his legislature does, while he will groan piteously if Congress boosts his income tax.

All of this emphasizes the value of a survey made recently by the Alexander Hamilton Institute showing how state indebtedness has increased in the last few years.

In 1915, for instance, the total indebtedness of all the state governments was approximately half a million dollars. At the end of 1930 it was just under two and a half billion. In 1915 the states' debts amounted to $5.41 per capita; today they stand at $20.04.

Governmental economy, in other words, is something that state as well as national legislators need to think about. These figures show that ordinarily they fail to do so. If retrenchment is imperatively needed at Washington, the same is no less true at the ordinary state capital.

STEEL HOUSES.

One of the most significant bits of recent news may, eventually, prove to have been the little story that told how a mid-western steel company has started building a complete steel house.

The house is to be an ordinary eight-room suburban affair. Floors, walls and roof are to be sheets of rolled steel, welded together, with synthetic floor boards underfoot and synthetic fiber boards on the walls. The exterior will be of asbestos tile.

All in all, the house will be something entirely new under the sun. Furthermore, it will cost no more than an ordinary house.

The potentialities of the thing are unlimited. Should such houses be built in quantity, the steel industry would be booming for many years to come. Just as the expansion of the auto industry provided the stimulus for our post-war prosperity, a vogue for steel homes might lift us entirely out of the present depression.

TAXATION HAS BECOME ALMOST CONFISCATION

EX-GOV. F. O. LOWDEN

Former Chief Executive
Of Illinois Speaks
To State Farmers

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 29—(UP)—Modern methods of taxation have become so burdensome, particularly upon farm land, that they have reached the point of confiscation, Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, and considered the foremost advocate in the Republican party for the farmer, declared in an address before delegates to the annual convention of the Illinois Agricultural Association here Thursday night.

Lowden, addressing the delegates at the association's annual banquet, quoted government statistics of a few years back in declaring that "on the average taxes take about thirty per cent of the net income of farmers," and added that "the percentage must be considerably larger now."

Among ways in which tax burdens could be lifted Lowden suggested the simplification and reorganization of local government, particularly in rural regions.

This he said, would mean for instance the merger of various governmental bodies such as the consolidation of all branches of courts into a single court to remain in continuous session.

Other proposals listed by Lowden were:

Regional jails or state jails and almshouses in place of present county jails and almshouses, which he said, are a disgrace and a reproach "to our country."

Elimination of various county functions such as supervision over roads, health and schools.

Consolidation of pioneer counties, now obsolete because of efficient methods of transportation.

Lowden declared that in the average county in Illinois the salaries of county officials absorb a very large percentage of the total government revenues of the county, running as high as fifty per cent.

"That these officials could serve a much larger territory in most instances, no one who is familiar with the situation for a moment can doubt," he said.

The county judge is but one instance of this. Even in the smallest county in the state he receives a salary of $1,800 a year while as a matter of fact his actual official duties can be performed in an insignificant portion of this time."

Lowden declared that there will be no permanent recovery from depression until the "gross inequality" in the difference of prices for things sold by the farmer as compared with prices paid by the farmers for necessities have been wiped out.

He cited prices of farm commodities of last September when, he said, they were twenty per cent below the five year average of 1909-1914.

"And yet the prices of the supplies the farmer buys, not including taxes and freight, were 27 per cent above the pre war level," he said.

While admitting marketing of farm crops through cooperatives has progressed, Lowden expressed doubt that the cooperatives would ever be sufficiently organized to give them the power in the making of prices which others enjoy unless some way be found by which the cost to the cooperatives is borne equally by all producers of the particular commodity.

Lowden's speech, in part, follows:

"The general property tax method has become so burdensome, particularly upon farm lands, that it has reached the point of confiscation. In many portions of the United States lands to an alarming extent, are being forfeited to the state for non-payment of taxes.

"In the realm of county government and town government, it is only in recent years that students of political science or the people generally have felt any concern. And yet it is precisely these governments which affect the lives of the country population most frequently and most intimately. It is to support these governments that the larger part of our taxes go. No student of the situation contends, I think, that these bodies, under present conditions, are either economic or efficient.

"For the protection of our lives and property we have within the same jurisdiction a number of courts, each absolutely independent of the others, with jurisdiction constantly arising. Is it possible to substitute for these divers courts a single unified court for the county. We should, many think, merge all the powers which these different courts now have into a single court. Such court could be in continuous session.

Our county jails have been a disgrace to our country for more than a hundred years. One eminent writer says that to find a parallel it is necessary to go back to Turkey and the thirteenth century. Our county almshouses have been a reproach to our civilization since they were first established. They should be abolished altogether and in their place should come either regional or state institutions.

With reference to the schools, the state has been compelled to exercise an ever widening supervision over the local authorities.

"As to roads also, the state has found it essential to extend its authority in a measure over local governments. In Illinois, for instance, the county board is required to certify to the state authorities a list of applicants for the position of superintendent of roads. The state conducts an examination and certifies to the county board those who have successfully passed the examination, with their ratings, and the board must appoint one of these.

The state too has gradually come to exercise some sort of authority over the public health administration.

"An extreme illustration is the county of Cook in the state.

"Chicago, is situated in this county. All the activities of the county, social, economic and political, revolve around that city.

"When counties were first established they met the needs of the times. The functions performed by the county were simple and few. Road construction was simple and largely a township matter. Transportation was slow and difficult. Hence the county must not be so large that all the residents could not reach the county seat with reasonable convenience. The county, therefore, as thus established, while admirably suited to those earlier conditions, is wholly unsuited to those of the present day.

"For now the county seat, for all practical purposes, is as accessible to the remotest resident as the nearest district school was a century ago.

"In the average county of Illinois, the salaries of county officials absorb a very large percentage of the total revenues of the county, running as high as 50 per cent.

"That these officials could serve a much larger territory in most instances, no one who is familiar with the situation can for a moment doubt.

"The county judge is but one instance of this. Even in the smallest county of this state he receives a salary of 1,800 a year while as a matter of fact his actual official duties will ever be sufficiently organized to give them the power in the making of prices which others now enjoy unless some way be found by which the cost to the cooperatives is borne equally by all producers of the particular commodity.

"If the producers of any staple farm product are only partly organized, even though a substantial majority of the producers have united in the cooperative, the producers of that commodity who are not members of the cooperative receive the full benefit of the improved price without bearing any burden incident to the operations of the cooperative.

"In September of the present year farm commodity prices were 20 per cent below the five year average of 1909-1914. And yet the prices of the supplies the farmer buys, not including taxes and freight, were 27 per cent above the pre war level.

"There can be no permanent recovery from this depression until this gross inequality had been removed. Let it be remembered that 40 per cent of the purchasing power of our country commonly abides in the farming population and those directly dependent upon it. In other words, in normal times, it is worth about four times our entire foreign market.

"If then, farm prices are not to move upward other prices must come down. If this means a revision of the tariff downward, let that revision be made. If it means lower wages in certain industries where the high labor cost is an important part of the price commodity, whatever we may wish, such wages must be lowered.

that we have too many governments.

"An extreme illustration is the county of Cook in the state.

"Chicago, is situated in this county. All the activities of the county, social, economic and political, revolve around that city.

"When counties were first established they met the needs of the times. The functions performed by the county were simple and few. Road construction was simple and largely a township matter. Transportation was slow and difficult. Hence the county must not be so large that all the residents could not reach the county seat with reasonable convenience.

"The county, therefore, as thus established, while admirably suited to those earlier conditions, is wholly unsuited to those of the present day.

"In fact, Cook county comprises only a part of the metropolitan district of which Chicago is the heart. Portions of other counties are as directly related to Chicago as Cook county.

"And yet Cook county alone contains within its borders 392 independent local governments.

"Is it any wonder that Chicago with all its vast resources, should be in financial distress?

"For the past decade prices of farm products have been lower than the prices of other commodities and services. In a simpler society we were accustomed to see prices move upward or downward together.

"The prices of farm products declined rapidly, while other prices to a great extent successfully resisted such decline. The explanation by the economists of this disparity was that since earlier depressions other classes of society had succeeded in effecting organizations powerful enough to resist, or at least to moderate, the decline of prices.

"Organization of the farmers for the purpose of marketing their crops collectively has progressed. It is doubtful, however, if the cooperatives of the staple farm products will ever be sufficiently organized to give them the power in the making of prices which others now enjoy unless some way be found by which the cost to the cooperatives is borne equally by all producers of the particular commodity.

"If the producers of any staple farm product are only partly organized, even though a substantial majority of the producers have united in the cooperative, the producers of that commodity who are not members of the cooperative receive the full benefit of the improved price without bearing any burden incident to the operations of the cooperative.

"I realize the practical difficulty in effecting the consolidation, however, contiguous counties, to a large extent can be united to administer revenue, schools, highways, health charities, and other subjects of state concern.

"And the constitution of Illinois expressly authorizes the formation of two or more counties into districts for the discharge of this function of government.

"It is a matter of common observation that we have too many officials. We are told that for every four persons gainfully employed in the United States outside of government, there is one person upon some public payroll. Their number goes on increasing in good and evil times alike.

"In any ideal reconstruction of county governments, the boundaries would be so changed as to make the county a natural economic and social unit, regard being paid to the principal cities and towns and the territory naturally tributary to such.

"The aim would be to create a county in which community activities and community consciousness were possible. That it is possible to reconstitute the local subdivisions so as to enhance community cooperation and community consciousness no one can doubt. And therefore instead of local self rule suffering, it would in reality be advanced.

"It is often said that we have too much government. Whether this be true or not, it certainly is a fact that these officials could serve a much larger territory in most instances, no one who is familiar with the situation for a moment can doubt," he said.

Here's What British Sailors Are Trained To Do When Disaster Overtakes Undersea Craft

If you were trapped in a sunken British submarine, such as the M-2, 100 feet below the surface, your chances for escape would depend largely on a queer-looking contraption known as the Davis' "breathing bag" or collapsible lung, and looking like a cross between a gas mask and a life preserver.

And if you tried to escape from the submarine to the surface by means of the breathing bag, here's what you would do, under the direction of officers:

1. Go into a water-tight compartment of the submarine.

2. Partly flood the compartment to equalize the air pressure therein with the pressure of water outside the submarine.

3. Put on your breathing apparatus.

4. Open a torpedo hatch, or other opening, and slide out very slowly.

5. Rise slowly to the surface, using the "breathing bag" for air.

6. Use the buoyant breathing bag as life preserver on surface until help arrived. If the sea were very choppy the bag could still be used for breathing for considerable time.

Development of the British navy's Davis breathing bag was first brought to universal attention last June when it was used in the escape of six men from the British submarine Poseidon, which sank off Shanghai.

After attempts at rescue had failed, the men flooded a torpedo room, obeyed the instructions for using this instrument of escape and arrived on the surface, exhausted from their battle, but otherwise in good shape.

How the Bag Works

The breathing bag itself is simple enough, after you study it. It consists of a large rubber air container, a small oxygen cylinder, a small regeneration chamber for purifying air already breathed, a nose clip and devices to clamp the mask tightly to the head.

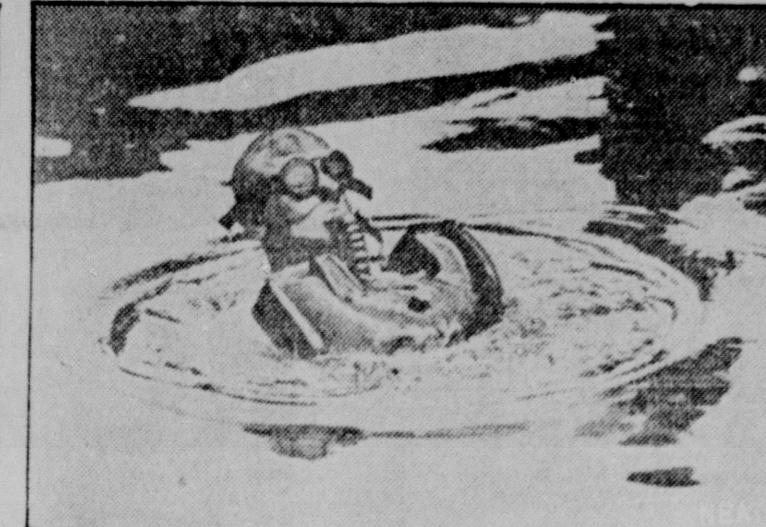

One of the dangers of using this method of escape from a submarine is the tendency to rise too rapidly. Users of this equipment are warned to rise very slowly to allow blood pressure to adjust itself to outside pressure.

In a submarine, such as the M-2 escape by means of the breathing bag should be simpler than from the Poseidon, other things being equal. The M-2 one of three similar vessels designed during the World War, is a double-hulled ship, and flooding of various compartments should not be necessary before escape.

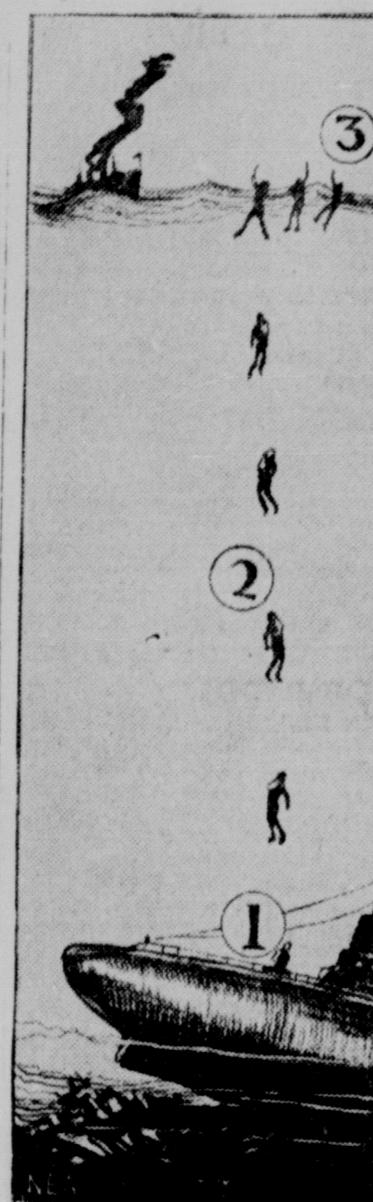

How Air Is Purified in Sub

One of the most important safety devices added to submarine equipment, is the regenerating chamber, which chemically purifies the air in the living quarters of the sub and permits the members of the crew to live for many hours by simply adding oxygen to their air. All subs carry tanks of oxygen for such emergencies.

In times of danger, when escape

SAFE AT LAST!—Here is a British sailor coming to the surface in a test of the Davis submarine rescue apparatus of Chatham Dockyard, England, recently. In tests, it worked perfectly.

THE LIFE SAVER — Here is a closeup of a sailor wearing the Davis apparatus. The flexible leather bag contains chemicals which regenerate the breath so it can be used over and over again, with an addition of oxygen from a small cylinder inside.

does not appear feasible, officers compel the men to lie in their bunks so they will not breathe too deeply and thereby consume too much of the precious oxygen.

Somewhat similar to the British Davis apparatus is the Momsen iron "lung" carried by subs of the U. S. Navy. It is the invention of Lieut. Commander Charles B. Momsen, who successfully tested it on numerous occasions. However, it has never been called upon for actual emergency use, as there have been no major submarine accidents in the United States Navy since it was introduced.

HOW IT WORKS — This sketch shows how the British navy's submarine rescue apparatus works. The masks on the men have left the sunken sub and are coming to the top.

thee:
Let never day nor night unallow'd pass
But still remember what the Lord hath done.

If only we could more clearly see that gratitude to God is the praise, the loving acknowledgement of the perfection of his being, of His constant care, of our debt to Him for Christ, Truth, the "Unspeakeable gift," we should rejoice in the truth and make more rapid progress heavenward. The giving of thanks enriches the heart, banishes the futile beliefs entertained by the false material selfhood of the dead past, and spans the outlook with a bow of beauty, the expectancy of good!

—The Christian Science Monitor

It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O most High: Show forth thy loving-kindness in the morning, and thy faithfulness every night. —Psalm 93.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

BY THE UNITED PRESS

Washington, Jan. 29—(UP)—Clarance Marshall Young, the handsome bachelor who serves efficiently as the Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, had an airplane crash the other day. He emerged unscathed, for it was an experience far less exciting than some that have come to him during his long flying career.

"The newspapers, he exclaimed, are making a slouch of me. They comment too often on my clothes."

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

STILL BLAZING THE TRAIL

Until the government can step forward with some logical and effective plan of bringing immediate relief to the veteran in need, the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U.S. is obliged to continue its fight in behalf of immediate cash payment of the adjusted compensation certificates.

This organization has always enjoyed the distinction of knowing what it wants and being consistent in its efforts toward every objective.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars will not be swayed by every wind that comes across the plains of public opinion nor will we bend to the whims of a sentiment created by expert propagandists and astute politicians.

The V. F. W. may not win all of its battles, but when it falls in defeat, it goes down with head held high, proud of its loyalty to its ideal as an organization worthy of the many achievements already to its credit.

Others may see fit to play political football with issues that are vital to the ex-service man, but as far as the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States is concerned, we are still in favor of immediate cash payment of the adjusted compensation certificates.

Senator Huey P. Long, who said he was a little fish in a big puddle here even if he was "Kingfish of Louisiana," forgot his role when he challenged the argument of a Senate veteran, the many-worded King of Utah.

The Senate freshman interrupted King's discussion of an amendment to the latter's alien seaman bill to suggest:

"Just put a period at that point and then stop."

King was irritated and showed it.

"As I have repeatedly said," he resumed, "with the air of explaining something to a backward child."

Long did not seem overawed in the slightest degree.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis is disgusted with the current brand of congressional statesmanship.

Rather sadly, the respondent and courtly Democrat from Illinois condemns himself along with the rest of his colleagues. He says Congress has succumbed to policies of economic opportunism.

Lewis' complaint is that members vote now according to sectional geographic economy rather than national issues. He pointed out that Senators from grain states cast their votes in accordance with the effect of a measure on the price of grain. He cited the administration's $2,000,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation as a sample of what "conservative" legislators will do in behalf of those whose views they represent.

"We have now," said Lewis, "the spectacle of the conservative elements bringing in such a bill as your father and grandfather would not have conceived as possible—a non-constitutional project to enable people to continue to hold their bonds and stocks."

The representatives of four or five farm organizations which are competing among themselves can dominate Congress, and we succumb like cowards, although we are thinking of ourselves and our seats rather than of the farmers. There is no use lying about it."

"The Senate no longer is a body," said Lewis, "permitted to occupy itself solely with questions of government here or abroad. We are forced by conditions to surrender to the demands of geographic economy."

But the Senator said he was not downtown.

"As soon as the people get out of this economic slough," he continued,

TRROUBLED ALL LIFE WITH CONSTIPATION

But Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brought Real Relief

If you are subject to headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness, and other effects that so often result from constipation, read Mrs. Turner's voluntary letter.

"For the past six months I have been eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and cannot praise it too highly."

"Am fifty years of age. All my life have been troubled with constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has not only helped me, but has cured me."

"I thought I couldn't like the taste of bran, but Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious." —Mrs. C. J. Turner, 507 Hanover Street, Fall River, Mass.

Tests show ALL-BRAN contains two things which overcome constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Certainly this is more natural than taking pills and drugs—so often harmful. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. Two tablespoonsful daily will correct most types of constipation. If you have intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

"they will go back to the fundamental rights of government."

Lewis expressed his sentiments with all the gravity of a Supreme Court Justice. It is his habit to clothe his thoughts with judicial solemnity and his person with regal bearing of the gayest obtainable hue. His costume of the moment was blue coat and trousers. His vest was a double breasted cream color confection garnished with a gold chain. His tie and shirt were green and the handkerchief in his coat pocket was edged in blue.

"The newspapers, he exclaimed, are making a slouch of me. They comment too often on my clothes."

other book does—the highest code of ethics. It not only teaches morality, brotherly kindness, honesty and decency; but also the highest type of patriotism.

No child should be denied knowledge of this book, yet there are hundreds of thousands of young people in this country who know nothing of God's Word. If this lack is not speedily remedied the nation will meet disaster. Nations that forget God—Perish.

In 1924, of the 55,000 children in Chicago who passed through the hands of the police, "fewer than one-sixth ever heard of the Ten Commandments."

The Brooklyn, New York, Grand Jury, in a recent report says: "After long and patient investigation, we find that thieves, murderers, boot-leggers, hi-jackers and others of the motley crew of crime do not come from law-abiding and Bible-reading homes."

While there are 30,500,000 in this country who neither go to church nor Sunday school and are therefore deprived of all moral and religious training, the absence of the Bible and its moral precept from the school-room is an injustice to the nation.

Dean of American Symphony Conductor, at 70, Looks to New and Greater Musical Achievements

By PAUL HARRISON

New York.—(NEA Service)—The years of Walter Johannes Damrosch has reached three score and ten. But the dean of American symphony conductors is looking forward, his kindly blue eyes, like his ambition, still undimmed.

He refuses even to speculate on the time of his retirement. His seventieth birthday means just another Saturday to him—another day of hard work and preparation for other busy days to come.

Of course he will cherish the large stack of telegrams and letters that represent the well-wishes of the world's musically-great on this anniversary. But he will value them no more than the usual run of fan mail with which he is regularly deluged.

For Damrosch remains awed by the scope of radio work through which his old fame has been renewed a thousand fold. He delights in explaining that one of his broadcast programs today is heard by more people than he reached with personal appearances during his entire career.

Couldn't Retire

"It was five years ago that I resigned as conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra," he recalled. "At that time I had dreamed of a lazy, hazy life of retirement—done with all the frantic activity of so many years."

"But then the radio came along and swept me right back into the whirlpool. I am enjoying it immensely, too."

As some 6,000,000 school children and perhaps as many adults know, Walter Damrosch conducts music appreciation programs over a nation wide network on Friday mornings, and regular symphony concerts on Sundays. Thousands of schools have made his appreciation series a part of their regular work.

Millions of Aristocrats

"I am humbly grateful," Damrosch resumed, "that such a chance came to me at my time of life. I do not believe that any other musician ever had a comparable opportunity."

"Good music is becoming democratized. Every week I speak and play to 'common people' who now

Walter Johannes Damrosch . . . is looking forward his unpretentious studio desk jangled intermittently.

Damrosch already had spent an hour at his piano, arranging a new score. Every minute of his day was scheduled for appointments, interviews, broadcast, rehearsal. He has a passion for punctuality, and reckons that he never has been late more than 10 times in his life.

Helps Helpless Musicians
His seventieth birthday finds Damrosch with three predominant interests: his broadcasting, a drive for a $300,000 fund for the relief of unemployed musicians and his campaign for the presentation of opera in English.

He has more than a humanitarian interest in seeking to aid the jobless of his profession, for he declares that their destitution affects the very structure of music itself. In addition to sponsoring benefit concerts, his committee has received numerous liberal contribution from music lovers. One of these gifts was the $5,000 birthday check presented to Damrosch by the National Broadcasting Company.

Never intolerant of so-called popular music (he has even broadcast George Gershwin's "I Got Rhythm"), the conductor nevertheless is hopeful that a modern Wagner or Beethoven will arise.

No Today

"There are no giants creating music today," he said. "This age does not seem able to express itself musically. We have been feeding too much on the past."

He is not alarmed about the new crooning vogue. Damrosch at 70 has seen many a fad come and go.

The conductor cares little for reminiscence, but there are thrills aplenty in his long career. Born in Breslau, Germany, January 30, 1862, he came to this country with his father, Dr. Leopold Damrosch, a famous conductor. When the latter died unexpectedly in 1884, Walter, then only 22, was chosen to take up his father's baton.

Later, in the face of predictions of terrible failure, young Damrosch sold his home to finance a season of Wagnerian music. It was successful, and for four years thereafter. In 1890, he began giving private lecture-recitals—the forerunners of his present music appreciation series. He wrote an opera himself, "The Scarlet Letter," and toured the country with it. In 1903 he made the New York Symphony Orchestra into a permanent organization and conducted it until he resigned in 1927.

"Today," said Walter Damrosch, "I feel like a young man just getting started in a new work. My birthday wish is that I may be permitted to carry on for at least a few more years."

Dr. J. C. Stewart And Wife Accused Of Larceny

Edwardsville, Ill., Jan. 28.—(AP)—

Warrants were issued here today against Dr. J. C. Stewart, Superintendent of the Alton State Hospital for the Insane, charging larceny by a public officer, malfeasance in office and larceny.

They are based on suppressed indictments returned yesterday by the Madison county grand jury.

Dr. Stewart's charged in another indictment with "maliciously and willfully" failing to properly observe and use the property of the institution intrusted to his care.

Dr. Stewart asserted his innocence of the charges. The names of Rodney H. Brandon of Springfield, Director of Public Welfare, appears on the indictments as a witness.

Dr. Stewart who was appointed to the Superintendence of the hospital more than two years ago by Gov. Louis L. Emerson, receives a salary of $4,500 a year and maintenance.

rector Rodney H. Brandon announced today.

"If I did not believe Dr. Stewart is an honest man he would not have been appointed to superintend the Alton hospital," Brandon said in commenting on the indictment.

BOWLING NEWS

BY ED WORLEY

Low scores were prevalent this week in the Commercial League.

The highest team total being 2636 rolled by the Walnut Grove five on Monday night. They also rolled a high team single game with a 392 count their second game. The bowlers were given a surprise this week by the appearance of the new Brunswick Red Neck ten pins which the Recreation management are using exclusively from now on. This accounting for such low scores.

The Beier's Loafers won a straight set Tuesday evening from the Bootery Five and are one of the three teams sharing first honors at present.

George Breeding of the Beier team upset the new sticks to the tune of 208 his second game while Donald Worley collected the biggest series with 566 for his three games.

Walnut Grove took went up 3 point Monday night, the heavy losers being the Manhattan Cafe, Robert Harridge of the Walnut Grove Pro hung up high series for the first week by spelling 577 for series and a 322 count for high game. The Walnut Grove are one of the fortunate teams to be in first place on the starting week.

The Walnut Grove five also claim high team series for the first week with 2636 and high team single game with 392.

The results of the Dixon Fruit Co. vs Highway Cafe were 3 to 1 in favor of the former. This puts the Dixon Fruit Co. in a three way tie with the Walnut Grove Products and the Beier's Loafers for first place.

The big total for this match was rolled by Frank Kness of the Dixon Fruit Co. five with 550. High single game of 198 was contributed by Russell Byers of the Fruit Co. five.

United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, Jan. 29—(UP)—Max

Bair and King Levinsky are going to give off a battle in Madison Square

Garden tonight and you had better get there early if you want a seat.

For besides the regular boxing fans

there is going to be in attendance some 2000 members of the National Society of Circus Booking Agents, each upon ton landing one or both of the clowns for his firm.

The fight has been advertised as the battle of the challengers. This is erroneous. The fight should have been ballyhooed as the Battle of the Boobs. Just for safety's sake let it be said that outside of the ring Levinsky and Baer may be everything but boobs. They may even be great scholars, devoting their spare time to Kanti, Voltaire, Edgar Wallace,

Milton and Zane Grey. Or they may be eager scientists, striving to break down the elusive atom.

But in the ring all reason leaves them and they become just a couple of mad boobs, swinging from the floor. As a result they are likely to put on a show which will outlast

the memory of Rector's, and Rec-tector's, it seems, never will be forgotten.

Those who saw Levinsky in action against Loughran never will forget the scene when the King landed the second of his around-the-world-in-one-day right hands. While the refe-reeree tolled off the numbers the King slidest off to a vantage point on the top strand of rope and swung to and from, chattering and grinning. When Loughran got to his feet the King rushed in and took a stiff poke in the pantry for his trouble. Unperturbed, he dropped his guard and had not been hit hard enough to be knocked down.

The verdict was unanimous and,

after the surprise of seeing the widely traveled title move on again, the crowd of 10,255 spectators acclaimed the victory. The gross gate was more than $28,000.

There's no figuring this fight on for neither boy has any form,

Levinsky leads with his right one moment, his left the next, and his chin the next. One minute he's in a crouch. The next finds him as upright as a clothes line prop on a Monday morning. Baer is every bit as unfathomable. He often baffles himself with his unorthodox maneuvres.

The winner of tonight's Battle of the Boobs will find himself up in the money. The ever fertile brain of Jimmy Johnston has devised an elimination program whereby the

C. G. ROSEBERRY, EDITOR OF THE SHAWNEE (OKLAHOMA) NEWS, SAYS:

THAT in a recent survey by a certain newspaper to determine the features which had the greatest reader interest, it was found that advertising ranked near the top.

The people are evidently interested in supplying as many of their wants as possible with the least outlay of money. To do so they read the advertisements religiously.

The most important thing business can do to hasten good times is to go forward with a full head of steam into an advertising campaign that will be extensive enough to inspire confidence. Hoarded money and timid money must find its way into the channels of business and a sufficient volume of advertising will turn the trick.

Money, the product of brain and muscle, is truly the life blood of the nation. Its rebuilding and renewing power is possible only when it is in circulation. Hoarded by individuals and congested in great banking institutions, it is as useless as clots of blood are to a sick man who needs his tissues bathed and healed by warm and liquid blood.

Advertising is the best cure for congestion and coagulation.

PERSHING CONFIDENT

Chicago, Jan. 28—(AP)—General John J. Pershing, Commander-in-Chief of the A. E. F. says he believes the American people have the courage and stamina to fight their way to economic recovery.

Answering prophecies that America is on the downward path and that present reversals are the beginning of the end, the General expressed the belief yesterday that the civilization of the United States would not sink into oblivion like that of Greece or Rome.

"We have religious tolerance, universal education and freedom of the press," he said. "With these great advantages and our indomitable spirit we should have utmost confidence in the permanent stability of our government."

The Funniest Sayings of ABE MARTIN As Selected By George Ade

is bit to the mastering of the diseases of civilization.

The brain, as Tilney has so aptly put it, is the master of destiny. It dominates the workings of the human machine.

The drive of the brain is transmitted through definite channels. These channels spread throughout the body and enmesh the vital organs, including the glands of internal secretion.

If it is not possible to reduce the amount of stimuli to which man is subjected it is at least possible to cut the channels of communication.

This is done surgically by an actual cutting of certain of the nerves going to the glands of internal secretion and particularly to the suprarenals.

This operation may be compared to the action of the telegrapher who, weary of the clicking of his instrument, throws the switch breaking the electrical circuit.

In performing such operations, the surgeon does not labor under the illusion that he is improving upon nature. He grants that his procedure attempts to cure a greater evil with a lesser one.

But he will argue, when an afflicted individual pleads for help, there is ample justification for radical surgical intervention.

This is but another illustration or the wisdom of the Greeks who insisted that ultimately the good physician must become a philosopher, and the philosopher a physician.

REDUCE JUNKET FUND

Washington, Jan. 28—(UP)—The Senate today voted to reduce the appropriation for American participation in the Geneva arms conference from $450,000, requested by the administration, to $300,000.

Senator King, Dem., Utah, suggested it would be appropriate to attach to the appropriation bill an "admission" to Japan to cease military activities in China. He did not formally present such an amendment.

LEGION SONG ADOPTED.

Herrin, Ill., Jan. 28—(AP)—The Song of the Illinois Legionnaire by Mrs. Mildred Yuill, Herrin Legion Post, was adopted by the state executive board last night. Mrs. Yuill is also author of the official state Lions Club song.

Daily Health Talk*LIGHTENING THE BURDEN

Man and medicine are faced with the problem of softening and to slowing down the drive which civilization imposes upon the human body without relinquishing that very quality which has elevated man so far above animals.

Mental hygiene is teaching us to master and guide our emotional reactions. Science is lengthening our perspective on life. Education is slowly eliminating our many errors.

The process is gradual, its steps laboriously achieved, but definite advances have been made.

The surgeon, too, is contributing
